ZiloAcademy

✨ Grade 6 English — Inferential Comprehension ✨

Name: Demo Grade 6 Date: 26/11/2026

1. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The government delayed releasing the report for over a year past its original deadline." What can we infer about the report? — "it may contain findings the government wanted to avoid releasing quickly" or "the report was completed well ahead of schedule"? 2) Read: "The scientist refused every interview request after publishing her controversial paper." What can we infer about the scientist? — "she may be avoiding public scrutiny or criticism" or "she is eager for as much attention as possible"?

2. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The usually punctual train was delayed with no announcement given to waiting passengers." What can we infer about the delay? — "something unexpected likely happened on the line" or "the train was running exactly on schedule"? 2) Read: "The usually talkative neighbour stopped greeting the family after the fence was built." What can we infer about the neighbour? — "the fence may have caused a disagreement between them" or "nothing at all has changed between them"?

3

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The usually generous donor quietly stopped contributing to the charity without explanation." What can we infer about the donor? — "something may have changed their view of the charity" or "they are more committed to the charity than ever"? 2) Read: "The diplomat chose her words with extreme care, pausing often before each sentence." What can we infer about the diplomat? — "she is being cautious about how her words might be received" or "she is speaking carelessly without thought"?

4

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "Despite the freezing temperatures, the volunteers kept working, only stopping to warm their hands briefly." What can we infer about the volunteers? — "they are highly dedicated to their task" or "they are not committed to the work"? 2) Read: "The town quietly rebuilt the damaged bridge overnight before the official inspection." What can we infer about the town council? — "they wanted the bridge to look acceptable before being checked" or "they were not concerned about the inspection at all"?

5

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The usually punctual train was delayed with no announcement given to waiting passengers." What can we infer about the delay? — "something unexpected likely happened on the line" or "the train was running exactly on schedule"? 2) Read: "The pilot requested an emergency landing, though she insisted everything was under control." What can we infer about the situation? — "something was likely wrong despite her reassurance" or "the flight was completely routine"?

6

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The scientist double-checked her data five times before submitting the paper for publication." What can we infer about the scientist? — "she values accuracy and wants to avoid mistakes" or "she is careless about the accuracy of her work"? 2) Read: "The town quietly rebuilt the damaged bridge overnight before the official inspection." What can we infer about the town council? — "they wanted the bridge to look acceptable before being checked" or "they were not concerned about the inspection at all"?

7

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The professor's office was filled with awards, yet she rarely spoke about her achievements." What can we infer about the professor? — "she is accomplished but humble" or "she is boastful about her success"? 2) Read: "The company suddenly offered generous refunds without customers even asking for them." What can we infer about the company? — "they may be trying to avoid a bigger problem or complaint" or "they have unlimited extra money to give away"?

8

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The pilot requested an emergency landing, though she insisted everything was under control." What can we infer about the situation? — "something was likely wrong despite her reassurance" or "the flight was completely routine"? 2) Read: "The company hired an unusually large legal team just weeks before the product launch." What can we infer about the company? — "they may be anticipating legal challenges" or "they expect no legal issues whatsoever"?

9

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The CEO announced record profits, yet several senior staff resigned within days." What can we infer about the company? — "something may be wrong despite the good financial results" or "everyone at the company is thrilled"? 2) Read: "The usually messy teenager suddenly cleaned his entire room without being asked." What can we infer about the teenager? — "he probably wants something or feels he owes an apology" or "he has no particular reason for cleaning"?

10

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Read: "The committee postponed the vote for the fourth time, citing "ongoing discussions."" What can we infer about the vote? — "there is likely significant disagreement among committee members" or "everyone already agrees and the vote is a formality"? 2) Read: "The school suddenly added extra security guards the week before the planned protest." What can we infer about the school? — "they are anticipating that the protest could become disruptive" or "they expect the day to be completely uneventful"?