ZiloAcademy

✨ Grade 7 English — Source Evaluation ✨

Name: Demo Grade 7 Date: 26/11/2026

1. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which better represents expert agreement on a topic? "a scientific consensus report" or "a single unverified opinion piece" 2) Which is more reliable in an ongoing fraud investigation? "a court-appointed auditor's findings" or "the accused company's own press statement"

2. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which is more reliable for medical information? "a .edu research site" or "an anonymous forum post" 2) Which is more reliable for historical facts? "a museum's official website" or "a fan-made wiki page"

3. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which is more reliable for legal facts? "a court transcript of what was actually said" or "a tabloid's paraphrased summary" 2) Which is more reliable for a company's actual profit? "an audited financial statement" or "a company spokesperson's informal comment"

4. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which better represents expert agreement on a topic? "a scientific consensus report" or "a single unverified opinion piece" 2) Which is more reliable for a medical treatment's effectiveness? "a clinical trial published in a medical journal" or "a testimonial on a supplement's own advertisement"

5. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which is more reliable for whether a building is safe? "a licensed engineer's structural report" or "a passerby's opinion that a building looks fine" 2) Which is more reliable in an ongoing fraud investigation? "a court-appointed auditor's findings" or "the accused company's own press statement"

6. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which is more reliable for how a drug interacts with other medicines? "a pharmacist's reference guide" or "a stranger's anecdote in a comments section" 2) Which is more reliable for whether a treatment works across many patients? "a peer-reviewed meta-analysis" or "a single anonymous testimonial"

7. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which is more reliable for whether a product recall is serious? "the official safety regulator's notice" or "the product's own marketing material" 2) Which domain is generally more reliable for factual information? ".gov" or "a random personal blog"

8. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which is more reliable for whether an investment is safe? "a central bank's official report" or "a social media influencer promoting a cryptocurrency" 2) Which is more reliable for what a historical document actually says? "a translation credited to a named, qualified translator" or "an uncredited paraphrase shared online"

9. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which is more reliable for basic facts about a well-established scientific topic? "a school textbook" or "an anonymous forum thread arguing against scientific consensus" 2) Which is more reliable for whether a building is safe? "a licensed engineer's structural report" or "a passerby's opinion that a building looks fine"

10. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) Which is more reliable for how common a hospital infection is? "a hospital's own published infection statistics" or "a single patient's anecdote online" 2) Which is more reliable for what was actually said? "a transcript of a recorded interview" or "someone's paraphrased memory of the interview"