ZiloAcademy

✨ Grade 8 English — Character ✨

Name: Demo Date: 26/11/2026

1. Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) The internal desire or need that drives a character's actions throughout a story is called their ____. 2) A stereotypical character type instantly recognisable across many stories, like 'the wise old mentor', is called an ____.

2. A wise, experienced character who guides the protagonist is often called the ____.

3. Revealing a character's traits through the way other characters react to them is an example of ____ characterisation.

4. Answer all three (separate with commas). 1) A trusted character a protagonist shares secrets with is called a ____. 2) The third most prominent character in a story, ranked after the protagonist and the deuteragonist, is called the ____. 3) The internal desire or need that drives a character's actions throughout a story is called their ____.

5

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) A character used to highlight another character's traits by contrast is called a ____. 2) A complex, multi-dimensional character with a range of believable traits is called a ____ character.

6

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) A complex, multi-dimensional character with a range of believable traits is called a ____ character. 2) A character defined by a single, exaggerated trait with little depth is called a ____ character.

7

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) A character who sparks major change in other characters while remaining largely unchanged themselves is called a ____ character. 2) When a character's traits are shown through their actions, speech, or others' reactions rather than stated outright, this is called ____ characterisation.

8

A trusted character a protagonist shares secrets with is called a ____.

9

Answer all three (separate with commas). 1) The third most prominent character in a story, ranked after the protagonist and the deuteragonist, is called the ____. 2) A character who sparks major change in other characters while remaining largely unchanged themselves is called a ____ character. 3) A character used to highlight another character's traits by contrast is called a ____.

10

Answer both (separate your two answers with a comma). 1) A character whose personal values or goals put them at odds with the protagonist, without being purely evil, is often called a ____. 2) A complex, multi-dimensional character with a range of believable traits is called a ____ character.